Used her influence to best advantage when New St. Constitution was under consideration. Convinced poverty and crime have their main root in neglected childhood, she undertook, on her own initiative, to secure protection for the children of the poor, in the constitution of the st. Ambassador Bryce said "the finest document of human liberty written since the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution of Switzerland." Was voted a mbr. of the "American Acad., for the Study of Social and Political Science," an honorary membership which can only be obtained upon proven merit. "American Women in Civic Life" by Miss Bennett a N. Y. writer, contains the Life of Kate Barnard. A prominent Massachusetts Sociologist and Anthropologist, and mbr. of the Natl. Bd. of Indian Affairs, Warren K. Moorehead, has paid high tribute to Kate Barnard in his book devoted to the History and Destiny of the American Indian. Miss Barnard has appeared before Vassar Col., Bryn Mawr, Columbia Univ., The City Club of New York City, Cooper Union, and the League for Political Edu. In Boston she spoke at Ford Hall and Faneuil Hall. Kate Barnard is the first woman in the world to create a Department of St. and to write sections of a St. Constitution.
